Tairua recovery moves

Last Tuesday, the newly appointed Associate Minister for Emergency Management and Recovery, Chris Penk, was given a first-hand introduction to the local ravages of the recent storm that impacted the Coromandel. Accompanied by Coromandel MP Scott Simpson, TCDC Mayor Peter Revell, Community Board members Warwick Brooks and Barry Roberts, TCDC CEO Aileen Lawrie and representatives from NEMA (National Emergency Management Agency), Minister Penk was taken to view several sites in the area damaged by the storm and to talk with those affected.

The group then returned to Tairua to meet informally with Peter Hunt and Matt Juby, representatives from Tairua Business Association, to glean local business impacts from the weather event and its fallout. This meeting included TCDC Deputy Mayor, John Grant.

Minister Penk was keen to get a first-hand, clear understanding of the extent of the damage, the likely scale of repairs and remediation, and how the wider community impacts can be addressed.

The initial response has already begun with site clean-ups under way, assessments being made and plans percolating. This is at regional and national levels! Waka Kotahi has a two kilometre-long section under stop/go traffic management on SH25 at Pumpkin Hill, which contains multiple slip sites. Clean-up work across the district will continue throughout February, with stabilisation work required at several sites before roads can safely be reopened to two lanes.

As a bystander at this gathering, it was obvious that everyone in attendance, irrespective of role or politics, was deeply committed to establishing the full extent of the damage, both in physical and human terms, and developing a response that will best fit. Good people doing their best for our community!
